

Early Warning Signs of Suicide

While talking about suicide may be uncomfortable and unpleasant for some, raising awareness surrounding the symptoms and behaviors may ultimately save a person's life.

If a person threatens suicide, they should ALWAYS be taken seriously, regardless of their age.

People who are at the highest risk for suicide are those with a mental illness, due to lack of impulse control, lack of resources, and various life stressors that can be perceived as more severe than those of someone without a mental illness. Between 30-70% of suicide victims suffer from Major Depression or Bipolar Disorder (formerly known as Manic Depression). In fact, 90% of people who die by suicide have a diagnosable mental disorder.

Some risk factors for suicide include:

- One or more prior suicide attempts
- Family history of mental illness/substance abuse
- Family history of suicide
- A chronic physical illness, including chronic pain
- Physical or sexual abuse

75% of those who die by suicide exhibit some warning signs. If you or someone you know exhibits several of the suicide warning signs listed below, immediate action is required.

Suicide Warning Signs

- Appearing depressed or sad most of the time
- Withdrawing from friends and family
- Feeling trapped-like there is no other way out of a situation
- Exhibiting a significant change in personality, such as a person who is normally bubbly and cheerful becomes isolated and withdrawn from everyone
- Experiencing a change in sleep habits, either too much or not enough sleep
- Experiencing a change in eating habits

What do you do if you think someone is considering suicide?

- Trust your instincts that the person may be in trouble
- Talk with them about your concerns and LISTEN
- Ask direct questions without being judgmental

- Get professional help, even if the person resists
- Do not leave the person alone or with access to means (sharps, firearms, etc.)
- Do not swear to secrecy
- Do not act shocked or judgmental
- Do not counsel the person yourself
